Randy Pankratz is a central Kansas native who has pursued excellence in client service during more than twenty years of legal work. Randy's areas of practice include a variety of services to business clients, including employment law and contracts. He also works extensively in estate planning, wills and trusts, and administration of trust and probate estates. He believes that effective legal representation begins with an understanding of his clients' priorities and objectives. Randy's wife Charlotte owns and operates two fabric and quilting stores, and they have one daughter, Lily. Before becoming an attorney, Randy worked as a broadcast news reporter.
